

Drone Technology Transcript

In combatting rural crime, drones are playing an ever increasing role in bringing offenders and criminals to justice.

Charlie Yorke:

Farmers are already using drones to look over their large areas of farmland. And we're now starting to see rural police forces adopt this technology too.

PC Craig Purcell:

We use them to seek out people who may be wanted on warrant or find stolen property, which we've had good success with over recent months.

We have the ability to put the drone up and cover vast areas of land with limited numbers of officers.

Local farmers now have the ability to make use of their own drones to pass information over to Warwickshire Police that they've obtained.

Ultimately, drones allow us to cover more ground and do a better job looking after the rural community.
